PROJECT REPORT

Street to Stardom

The Street to Stardom (STS) project by Afrovanguard empowers youth with values and skills to combat social vices. It focuses on transforming young minds into responsible leaders through a four-step approach:

1. School Storm: Engaging with students in 10 public schools to introduce the project's mission and values.
2. Mentorship Sessions: Providing guidance on personal development and decision-making in partnership with school counselors.
3. Summer Training: A four-week program teaching skills in technology, art, media, and leadership, culminating in an exhibition
4. Ogidi Omo Concert & Exhibition: An event where the students get to showcase all they have learnt during the summer.

This structured approach bridges the gap between potential and opportunity.

ALIMOSHO SCHOOL STORM

Street to Stardom

As the inaugural step of our Street-to-Stardom Project, the School Storm which lasted from March to April 2024, focused on instilling our organization's seven core values in another set of 10 public secondary schools students to foster personal and communal growth. These values —Individuation, Responsibility, Diligence, Faith, Communal Spirit, Culture Appreciation, and Accountability—serve as essential principles for self-development and societal transformation.

In 2024, this initiative reached 10 schools in Alimosho Local Government, including State Senior High School, Igando, Ikotun, Ayobo, Egon, and Tomia. Through the dedicated and selfless efforts of Afrovlanguard volunteers, we divided into groups to deliver impactful sessions, some on the same dates, other on different dates as scheduled by the school authorities. Our volunteers inspired students to adopt these values and strive for personal excellence. The school authorities expressed great excitement, acknowledging the spark of inspiration and motivation we brought to the students.

As always, before the program commenced, Afrovanguard secured the necessary approvals from the Lagos State Ministry of Education, Education District 1, which oversees Alimosho Local Government. This ensured seamless collaboration with the schools and reaffirmed the legitimacy of our outreach.

The success of the School Storm Project highlights Afrovanguard’s commitment to empowering the younger generation and setting a strong foundation for the broader goals of the Street to Stardom Project.

Alimosho Summer School

Alimosho Summer School

As the second step in Afrovanguard's Street to Stardom Project, the Alimosho Summer School was designed to sustain and build upon the spark of creativity and motivation ignited during the School Storm Project. By providing practical opportunities leadership capacity building through skill development, the program ensured that this spark would not fade but instead grow into tangible skills and character transformation.

Held over four weeks during the summer holidays (July-August) in 2 centres (Alimosho Junior Grammar School and Ikotun Senior High School, the Alimosho Summer School identified talented students and provided intensive training in tech, media, and art while embedding Afrovanguard's seven core values—Individuation, Responsibility, Diligence, Faith, Communal Spirit, Culture Appreciation, and Accountability—into every activity.

Students explored various disciplines, including:
Tech: Coding, content creation, and market development.
Media: Graphics design, video editing, and digital storytelling.
Art: Playing musical instruments (piano, guitar, drums, violin), performing arts, drama, traditional dance, singing, and drumming.

This year, the program demonstrated the long-term impact of Afrovanguard's initiatives. Participants of the Alimosho Summer School 2023, who had also been incorporated into the Next Generation Genius Club under the Street to Stardom Project, returned as instructors. These individuals, having grown in leadership value and capacity, trained current students in their areas of expertise.

Additionally, students from Afrovanguard's MediaPro and Techome Projects utilized the Alimosho Summer School as their fieldwork experience, further enriching the program. To complement these efforts, Afrovanguard engaged an artist to creatively bring the program's vision to life.

By using skill training as a medium to instill core values, the program empowered participants to internalize these lessons and demonstrate their impact in their daily lives. By the end of the program, students exhibited notable growth in both abilities and character, setting them apart upon their return to school.

The Alimosho Summer School stands as a prrof to Afrovanguard's commitment to nurturing youth through sustained engagement, equipping them with the skills and moral foundation to excel and lead in their communities.

Ogidi Omo Concert

As the third step in Afrovanguard's Street to Stardom Project, the Ogidiomo Concert and Exhibition marks the culmination of the Alimosho Summer School. Recognizing that mastering new skills within four weeks is challenging, this event was created to showcase the potential and progress of the participants while celebrating their achievements.

During the Ogidi omo Concert and Exhibition, students demonstrated their leadership development and skills acquired in tech, art, and media. These included performances, displays of digital creations, and other artistic and musical presentations that reflected their learning journey.

The event also served as an end-of-summer celebration, creating an atmosphere of joy and accomplishment for the children. This engagement encouraged parents to enroll their children in the Next Generation Genius Club, the next phase of the Street to Stardom Project, as the school session began.

The Ogidiomo Concert and Exhibition not only celebrated the students' growth but also strengthened parental commitment to Afrovanguard's vision of nurturing future leaders equipped with technical skills, creativity, and strong values by enrolling them in the Next Generation Genius Program.

CEO's Time-Out with the Next Generation Genius

As part of Afrovanguard's efforts to foster leadership and community engagement, the CEO's Time-Out with the Next Generation Genius Club provided a unique opportunity for the children to interact with prominent leaders from the community. During this event, several CEOs were invited to spend time with the students, sharing their experiences and offering guidance.

The event featured various discussions on leadership, entrepreneurship, and personal development. The children had the chance to present their cases, showcasing the skills they had developed through the Street to Stardom Project. The session was interactive, encouraging the children to engage with the CEOs, ask questions, and receive valuable insights from these seasoned professionals.

Following the event, the CEOs were given a tour of the training facilities, where they saw firsthand the impact of Afrovanguard's initiatives. The visit ended with a commitment from the CEOs to support the Next Generation Genius Club in various ways, strengthening the ties between Afrovanguard and the local business community.

The CEO's Time-Out was a highlight of the Street to Stardom Project, offering the students both inspiration and tangible support from influential leaders.

Excursion

One of the CEO's who came visiting the Next Generation Genius Club was Mr Adetayo Adeyemo, the proprietor of Efforts Will School, one of the largest schools in Ejigbo who promised the children an all expense paid excursion visit to his school facility. This special visit allowed the children to explore one of the most impressive educational facilities in the region.

During the visit, the children were given a guided tour of the school, where they learned about the different facilities and operations of a large educational institution. The children had the opportunity to ask questions, gaining insights into the workings of a school of such scale.

But the experience didn’t stop there. The excursion was designed to be a fun-filled day, allowing the children to enjoy activities like swimming, games, and play sessions. It was a perfect blend of education and entertainment, offering the children a break from the classroom while still providing valuable learning experiences.

Mr. Adetayo's generosity and commitment to the children’s development created a memorable day for all involved. The excursion was not only about the fun and games but also about inspiring the children, exposing them to new environments, and encouraging them to dream big and become models of our core values system.

Scholarship Opportunity

This year also while Mr Adetayo visisted, he made a significant promise to the members of the Next Generation Genius Club. In addition to an exciting excursion, he committed to awarding Senior Secondary School Level Scholarships to two outstanding students from the club. These scholarships were granted to a boy and a girl, who demonstrated exceptional performance during Afrovanguard's Values via the training. As a result, they were both awarded a spot in the school, where they are currently rounding up their SS1 first term.

Both students have performed remarkably well academically, and they have become models of excellence for their peers. Their impressive dedication to their studies has earned them respect and admiration from both their classmates and the school staff. During their last break, they also expressed deep appreciation for the opportunity, and their ongoing success continues to inspire other students.

This scholarship has provided these two exceptional students with the opportunity to further their education in a prestigious institution, ensuring a brighter future for them, many thanks to Mr Adetayo Adeyemo.
